

Kijiji moves to charge some landlords

April 25, 2013 | canadianrealestatemagazine.ca

The free listing service so many landlords rely on is no longer quite so free, with Kijiji moving this week to charge serial – more specifically, concurrent – posters for apartment rental ads.

Specifically, starting April 24, the Apartment & Condos for Rent category will become a pay-per-insertion category. Essentially, all users will now be limited to three active ads live on Kijiji at any one time in order to avoid attracting charges.

Those posting three or more ads in that apartment/condo rental category now face a fee of $29.99 per ad, although Kijiji is pointing to monthly subscription packages that will allow landlords and their property managers to drop ads directly from their websites without having to manually post.
